

EUROPOL ANALYTICAL OPERATING DATABASES IN THE FUNCTION OF CRIME SUPPRESSION

Boban Simić
Željko Nikač
Marija Blagojević

Summary: Cooperation between EU Member States and their authorities of prosecution in the area of combating crime and establishing the European Police Service (EUROPOL), is a concrete idea of cooperation of Member States in the field of internal affairs, because it enhances in the common fight against terrorism, illicit drug trafficking and other serious forms of international crime. The highest level of cooperation with EUROPOL includes the exchange of personal data and EUROPOL requires the fulfillment of standards in the field of security and data protection. This kind of cooperation opens the possibility of an active disposition to information contained in the analytical work of EUROPOL files. Active participation in the analytical work files for which there is an operating interest in the future can be achieved by a proactive approach in the fight against certain forms of crime within the competence of EUROPOL.